Dental students need to develop a variety of competencies, including:

1. Professionalism

Being honest, reliable, responsible, competent, patient, and calm under pressure

2. Communication

Being able to interact with patients, their families, and supporting staff

3. Oral health management

Being able to assess, diagnose, and treat patients, and establish and maintain their oral health

4. Health promotion

Being able to demonstrate ethical behavior, evidence-based decision-making, and disease prevention

5. Practice management

Being able to understand the issues related to running a dental clinic, such as financial and legal issues, and patient and staff interactions

6. Treatment outcomes assessment

Being able to recognise and manage systemic emergencies, manage periodontal conditions and diseases, and monitor treatment outcomes

7. Practical skills

Being able to develop familiarity with equipment, ergonomics, and patient safety

8. Manual dexterity

Being able to perform dental procedures swiftly and efficiently

Here are some measurable objectives for dental students:

1. Provide quality care

Provide high-quality oral health care to patients and ensure patient education

2. Engage in ethical and legal practice

Actively deliver oral health services in an ethical and legal manner

3. Embrace continuing education

Set aside time to attend courses on emerging technologies, cutting-edge dental techniques, or practice management

4. Enhance clinical skills

Use goal-setting to improve patient care, contribute to practice efficiency, and enhance skills

Some targeted development objectives for dental students include:

1. Clinical management

Students can improve their ability to treat patients with special needs by having more practical sessions in the curriculum.

2. Infection control

Students should stay informed about the latest guidelines and technologies to ensure that their infection control practices are current.

3. Patient care

Students should have the clinical skills and knowledge to provide high-quality patient-centered care.

4. Develop radiography skills

Students can aim to become certified in dental radiography and work on perfecting their technique
